

Clothing and eczema factsheet

Many people with eczema find that wool and synthetic materials, such as polyester and nylon, cause overheating, sweating and irritation, which set off itch. Other materials and embellishments that can irritate skin include leather, lace, sequins, fake fur, tulle, velvet and denim. Rough seams, scratchy labels, dyes and fastenings (e.g. zips, buttons and poppers) can also cause problems for sensitive skin. As well as its potential for skin irritation, people with eczema need to think about how well an item of clothing is likely to cope with cream and ointment residue, and frequent washing.

Cotton tends to be the most commonly recommended material for people with eczema. Cotton is soft, cool, great at absorbing sweat, easily washable and allows the skin to 'breathe'. 'Cotton rich' blends can contain a significant proportion of polyester, so be sure to read labels carefully to see exactly what proportion of cotton is included before you buy.

Bamboo, another soft, breathable material, is more absorbent than cotton, highly effective at regulating temperature (keeping you cool in summer and warm in winter) and has antibacterial properties.

Bamboo can be confusing – the bamboo in clothing is generally described as 'bamboo viscose' or 'viscose derived from bamboo'. It tends to be teamed with cotton and elastane/spandex/lycra. The processing of bamboo viscose is chemically intensive and not very environmentally-friendly, but the material has the properties that make bamboo an attractive option to people with eczema.

An equally eczema-friendly option that's more environmentally-friendly is Tencel™ Lyocell. This is a cellulose fibre made from bamboo or wood pulp.

Silk is another good regulator of body temperature that is also soft and breathable. As well as ordinary silk clothes, it's possible to buy close-fitting silk garments specifically designed for people with eczema and other skin conditions. These garments are usually worn underneath regular clothes. Ordinary silk clothes (as opposed to therapeutic garments) are less practical than cotton or bamboo: silk cannot be washed as easily and creams are more likely to mark it.

The following list contains details of stockists of cotton, silk (both ordinary and therapeutic silk), bamboo and Tencel™ Lyocell clothing and bed linen. While the information is up-to-date at the time of writing, we cannot guarantee the continued validity of all entries. We do not recommend any particular company or supplier. The addresses listed are mostly contact addresses rather than shop locations.
